

ID News Track

International Biometrics & Identification Association

is pleased to provide the ID News Track to its members. This daily service is provided by Carroll & Froelich, PLLC.

Going paperless: Tech-savvy air travelers on board (MSNBC, Sep 02, 2010)

By Harriet Baskas - The next time you fly, you may not need to bother to print out your boarding pass.

State: 'Facial recognition technology' is working (The Chronicle, Sep 02, 2010)

The initial results of the state Department of Motor Vehicles' use of facial recognition technology to identify fraud cases, which began last February, has been instrumental in identifying more than 1,000 cases of possible fraud, according to state officials.

Researchers will have access to 'real-world' data on cyber-attacks across the Internet (Government Security News, Sep 01, 2010)

By Jacob Goodwin - The Science and Technology Directorate at DHS is planning to gather "comprehensive real-world data" about cyber-attack phenomena, so it can make those data sets available to an estimated 200 different research organizations attempting to develop products and technologies that can better protect the nation's computing infrastructure.

Facebook Adds Remote Logout Security Feature (eWeek, Sep 02, 2010)

By Brian Prince - Facebook is rolling out a security control that enables users to remotely log out of an active session from a different machine. The feature extends controls added in May to prevent unauthorized activity.

Anti-Google campaign on privacy (BBC, Sep 03, 2010)

By Maggie Shiels - The public advocacy group Consumer Watchdog is no lover of Google.

German gov pooh-poohs biometric ID card hack (The Register, Sep 03, 2010)

By John Leyden - German hackers successfully used off-the-shelf kit to extract personal data from the federal government's supposedly secure ID cards, but the government has downplayed the significance of the attack.

Indirect facial recognition goes real-time (Info Security, Sep 02, 2010)

Although facial biometrics is in widespread use in airports, railway stations, and other transport hubs across the UK, the system generally only works in real time when the person is either facing the camera or at a slight angle.

Indian Government Certifies Cross Match (Cross Match Technologies, Inc., Sep 01, 2010)

Cross Match Technologies, Inc., a global provider of biometric identity solutions has been recognized as the first certified supplier of biometric devices for India's unique identification numbers (UID) project

Global Biometrics Market to Reach US\$14 Billion by 2015, According to New Report by Global Industry Analysts, Inc. (PR Web, Sep 03, 2010)

GIA announces the release of a comprehensive global report on Biometrics market. Global Biometrics market is forecast to reach US$14 billion by 2015.